Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a solid-state imaging apparatus, and more particularly, to a solid-state imaging apparatus that includes a field-filling type photoelectric conversion element as a photoelectric conversion element, and a CCD solid-state imaging apparatus. 2. Description of the Related Art Hitherto, there is known a CCD solid-state imaging apparatus with a photoelectric conversion unit that includes a CCD (Charge Coupled Device) and a plurality of vertical CCDs (Charge Coupled Devices) arranged in a vertical direction in a two-dimensional array, the photoelectric conversion unit having a plurality of photoelectric conversion elements disposed in a horizontal direction. (Hereinafter, such a solid-state imaging apparatus will be referred to as a "CCD solid-state imaging apparatus".) The CCD solid-state imaging apparatus outputs image data as digital signals by transferring electric charges of the photoelectric conversion unit in the vertical CCDs, performing A/D (Analog/Digital) conversion on the electric charges of the vertical CCDs, and transferring the electric charges. The CCD solid-state imaging apparatus is shown in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2004-50576.Spontaneous sagittal plane rotation and tilt of the shoulder joint during different activities of daily living. One of the challenges in planning interventions for the shoulder joint is the need for data on the behaviour of shoulder sagittal kinematics in different activities of daily living (ADL). The first aim of the study was to assess the reproducibility of the instrumentation and also the within-subject standard errors of measurement (SEM) of the kinematics of the shoulder joint in a group of healthy subjects during different ADLs 3da54e8ca3
